Pays de la Loire (France)

We have equipped Avenue Jeanne d'Arc in Angers with Neobarcino benches and chairs, creating comfortable spaces where residents and visitors can sit, relax, and enjoy the urban environment.

In the heart of Angers, in the Pays de la Loire region, Avenue Jeanne d'Arc is one of the city's most iconic promenades, connecting the city centre with the Jardin du Mail and Square Jeanne d'Arc—green spaces ideal for leisure, sports, and relaxation.
At Benito Urban, we have contributed to enhancing this setting by installing Neobarcino wooden benches and chairs. Our Neobarcino range, with its sober and timeless design, blends seamlessly into this historical environment, offering comfort and functionality to users of public space. Thanks to this intervention, both residents and visitors can now sit, relax, read, or simply enjoy the scenery in a well-maintained and welcoming atmosphere.
The avenue, which dates back to the 17th century and was renamed in 1891 in honour of Joan of Arc, stands out for its heritage value and peaceful ambiance. We are proud to be part of this urban renewal project that highlights the past while enhancing the city experience for everyone.

Located in San Sebastián, mount Igueldo is one of the most attractive tourist attractions of the city as its top offers stunning views of the Concha Bay.

On the summit, there is a centenary amusement park which remains in operation and can be accessed by cable car.

With the aim of offering visitors a place to rest and from which the coast can be admired, BENITO NeoBarcino benches have been installed. It is a classical yet resistant model, made with tropical wood slats and cast iron legs.

To ensure the durability of the material, two treatments have been applied: Ferrus which protects iron and guarantees an optimal resistance to corrosion, even in saline environments; and Lignus, a fungicide, insecticide and waterproof agent for wood.
