Villa di Massenzio is located between the second and third mile of the ancient Appian Way and consists of three main buildings. It also has a garden. It is where a group of benches from the Ela model, made of concrete and wood, have been installed. This site is named after the Roman Emperor Massenzio and is one of the most visited sites in the Eternal City.

The benches are made with a water-repellent reinforced concrete seat moulded with a matt stainless-steel structure for anchorage. They have wooden slats and backrests.

Tres Cantos finishes the building of the Entertainment Science Campus by installing BENITO street furniture: security bollards, benches and bins.

Located in Tres Cantos, the Entertainment Science Campus of Planeta Training and Universities, the training division of Planeta Group, is the first campus of entertainment sciences of Europe.

This project was based on two premises: looking for efficiency in design as well as minimum consumption of energy and resources.

BENITO was the company chosen to supply the campus with street furniture. Aiming at combining innovative design and sustainable development, the products chosen were mainly made of low environmental impact materials such as concrete, wood and recycled plastic.

Among the installed products, the one that stands out the most are the semi-automatic bollards with a reflective strip to control the access of vehicles on campus.

Concrete benches and bins, wooden design benches and Ecosens bins made of ReBnew recycled plastic were also installed.

Benches from the Ela collection were installed. To carry out this project, the architects team chose the benches from the Ela collection, which are made of concrete combined with tropical wood. This collection is characterised by its minimalist shapes ideal for all types of environments. In order to light the square, Simetrika luminaires were chosen. They consist of a very minimalist cylindrical light point made of aluminium. Moreover, the optic group is located on top of the luminaire, thus reducing luminous pollution.
